

$10 OFF WALKING TOURS FOR LOCALS

Now through September

If you've always wanted to take one of our walking tours, now is the time! We are giving locals $10 off the price of a walking tour ticket (normally $25 for adults and $15 under 12) through September. Get answers to burning questions about your favorite historic house, find out why Murder, She Wrote is SO popular, and hear ghost stories from many of the buildings you've been inside!

Just come to any of our scheduled walking tours from now through September, show the docent an ID with your zip code, and pay at the door (discount is not available for online bookings). Check our tour calendar for the most up-to-date list of tours. We are offering our most popular tours over Labor Day weekend, so come in with your friends and family.

A PEEK INTO THE PAST

PROHIBITION IN MENDOCINO

It's been a hoppy summer at the Kelley House thanks to our current exhibit, "On Tap: The History of Brewing on the Mendocino Coast." The same can't be said for the summer of 1909, because voters in Mendocino passed prohibition that year on July 27. This law banned all alcohol sales within the town limits, putting nine saloons and five hotel bars out of business. Caspar, Noyo, and Cleone also voted to go dry. Federal prohibition wouldn't pass for another ten years.

This image shows John and Joseph Granskog behind the bar at the Eagle Saloon located on West Main Street in Mendocino, in 1909. Joseph opened up the Eagle Saloon in 1909, but lost his business shortly after when Mendocino went dry. He and his wife, Albertina, returned to Finland with their children for a visit. Albertina stayed in the old country, but Joseph returned in 1912 to convert his old business to the Bay Front Garage. His family later returned to Mendocino. READ MORE

CLOSING SOON!

On Tap: The History of Brewing on the Mendocino Coast

Exhibit runs through Sep. 29th

Hours: Thurs - Mon, 11am - 3pm

There are still a few more weeks to visit this fascinating exhibit, which traces the deep roots and rich stories behind one of Northern California's most spirited industries—from the small breweries that served the local lumber workers to the craft beer renaissance that put the Mendocino Coast on the national brewing map.
